

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to
air a factually
irresponsible
anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is a clear example
of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the
public airwaves free
of charge, and is
obligated by law to serve the public interest. But its actions violate the
public interest,
since its actions
serve only one
candidate and one
party.

Sinclair's actions
show why we need to strengthen media
ownership rules, not
weaken them.
